

Newborn Medicine Practice Opportunity

St. Louis Children's Hospital, ranked as one of "America's Best Hospitals 2007" by U.S. News and World Report, and Washington University School of Medicine's Division of Newborn Medicine are seeking a neonatologist to join a dynamic 23-member team of physicians.

This opportunity offers:

- Rotating coverage at:
 - St. Louis Children's Hospital: 75-bed, level III Newborn Intensive Care Unit (NICU)
 - Barnes-Jewish Hospital: 26-bed special care nursery and 25-bed well-baby nursery
 - Missouri Baptist Medical Center: 10-bed special care nursery and 15 bed well-baby nursery
 - Progress West Healthcare Center: Level 1 nursery with neonatology back-up
- Occasional follow-up clinic coverage and antenatal consultations, while covering certain nurseries
- Attractive call rotation and schedule

Washington University School of Medicine offers:

- The opportunity to teach fellows, residents and medical students at Washington University School of Medicine, ranked #4 by U.S. News and World Report "America's Best Medical Schools" and at St. Louis Children's Hospital, nationally-recognized as one of the best pediatric hospitals
- A collegial team of excellent basic investigators, clinical investigators, outstanding educators, master clinicians and neonatal-perinatal fellows
- Exceptional research in the areas of molecular and cellular regulation of development, whole organ physiology and clinical investigation
- BioMed21, a program dedicating $300 million in resources, including NIH support and a $130-million, three-year award to the Genome Sequencing Center
- Competitive salary and superior benefits package provided by Washington University School of Medicine

St. Louis, Missouri offers an excellent cost of living, beautiful neighborhoods boasting superior schools and educational institutions; family oriented activities including an award winning zoo, a children's museum and national family theme park; major league team sports; wide array of restaurants, shopping and much more ... making it a great place to live and work!

For additional information please contact:

Kally Higgins
Department of Pediatrics
Washington University School of Medicine
314.454.4826
higgins_k@kids.wustl.edu

